A Sea Change in Waterfront Living

Portside Square is Ellington's newest design statement. A landmark development that captures the fluid energy of Dubai's maritime heritage while shaping the future of waterfront living. Rooted in the brand's philosophy of "Live by Design," it unites flowing elegance with architectural clarity, creating homes that are as inspiring as their setting.

Architecture in motion

The development is defined by three sculptural residential towers: Portside Residences I, II, and III, whose façades draw inspiration from the natural rhythm of wind and water. Gentle curves ripple across the skyline, softening the architectural presence and evoking a sense of serenity in motion. Together, the towers establish a harmonious dialogue between form and environment, capturing light, sea, and sky while expressing Ellington's vision of design that elevates everyday living.

Designed for life in flow

Every element of Portside Square has been conceived to enrich the rhythm of daily life. The interiors take inspiration from the dialogue between sea and shore, where textures, materials, and finishes reflect both movement and timelessness. Landscaped spaces extend this sense of flow, weaving together calm retreats and active communal zones that invite connection. From wellness and fitness to curated lounges and retail, the development becomes more than a place to live - it is a sanctuary where design, community, and the waterfront converge in harmony.

A high-angle, monochromatic photograph of a person in a white dress standing on a wooden deck, looking out at a large body of water. The water's surface is covered in concentric ripples, creating a hypnotic, circular pattern that dominates the right side of the frame. The person is positioned on the left, their back to the camera, looking out towards the center of the ripples. The overall mood is serene and contemplative.
